Daniella was one of the most caring teachers I've had at Penn, which made the class more important to me.

Daniella is a fantastic teacher whose laid back nature helps make the class enjoyable in the midst of a stressful college environment. She is incredibly knowledgeable and also open to hearing the perspectives and concepts of her students. She always made me feel heard and I loved taking this course with her!

I loved this class and professor! The learning environment was inviting and encouraging. The subject material was interesting, the plays we attending were amazing, and the class discussions were always insightful. I also loved having guest discussions with people who work in theatre.

Daniella was a great instructor. She was understanding of the fact that students in the class had varying experience and knowledge of theatre. The curriculum was great, and the plays we got exposure to were all very different, which gave us a taste of what exists out there in theatre. This class certainly stimulated my interest in the subject matter, and I hope to, from now on, take advantage of the great theatre scene in Philly.

I loved coming to this class and Daniella was always so excited about the material. Her passion sparked my passion and made this theatre class fun for everyone (even those who had never been immersed in theatre before). She was also very understanding of conflicts and other issues students may have and stressed that she did not want us to be overwhelmed because of work she gave us and constantly made sure that we weren't.

Overall, I enjoyed this course. Professor Vinitiski is a great professor, especially for her first year of teaching at Penn. I appreciated that, being the only Black student in the class, she asked for my feedback about race-related conversations, which made me feel comfortable.
